Some progress in talks, but major issues still unresolved

By Paul Guggina
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Daily negotiations have yielded some agreement between the striking Granite City Federation of Teachers and the Board of Education, but the two major issues — salaries and makeup days — remain unresolved.

Union President Shirley Stoll said Wednesday the two sides have reached "a tentative agreement" regarding retiree benefits, but reported "no progress" in other areas.

The union's most recent proposal, made Tuesday, is for a 17 percent raise over two years.

The board has offered a 7 percent raise over two and a half years.

"Our proposal was a two-year agreement expiring in August 1990," Stoll said. "We are proposing (raises of) 8½ percent each of those two years."

The teachers' original proposal asked for raises of 10 percent for each of the next two years.

The board is offering a three-and-a-half year contract that includes raises of 4 percent for 1988-89, 2 percent for 1989-90, 1 percent for the first half of 1990-91, and a reopener for further salary negotiations in January 1991.

The board's original offer called for a 4 percent raise in 1988-89, an additional 2 percent possible this school year if there is money left over at the end of the year, and a reopener clause for further salary negotiations next summer.

Besides salaries, the two sides

Teachers losing money

By Paul Guggina
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Teachers are losing an average of $170 a day while they strike.

District 9 is also losing money, but it may come out ahead in the long run.

The money would be recovered for both parties if the school year is extended beyond June 4, the last scheduled day of classes, but the Board of Education's negotiating team has said it will not extend the school year.

According to Superintendent Gib Walmsley, the teachers are docked 1/182 of their annual salary each day they fail to report to work.

Based on an average salary of $31,000 and 13 strike days, each teacher has lost a total of $2,210 so far — a total of about $983,450 districtwide.

The school district would lose statesaid by shortening its calendar year, but not as much as the teachers.

"The total daily wage paid the teachers exceeds the total daily state aid that we receive," said Norm Owca, director of finance for the district.

In order for the district to Aldermen dispute ward boundaries

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

MADISON — The city's two black aldermen are unhappy over a City Council vote Tuesday to place all the property annexed by the city in the last few years into the Third Ward.

Fourth Ward Aldermen Norris Horton and Charles Rockett are vowing to fight it — in court, if necessary.

The council passed two measures. One put the extensive tracts of land into the Third Ward; a second authorized City Attorney Caspar Nighossian to draw up a city ordinance to that effect.

The land in question, which has no residents, lies along Illinois 205 from the McCambridge Avenue viaduct and extends to and includes the Gateway Midstate Truck Plaza. It does not include populated areas in Eagle Park and part of Nameoki Township.

The vote was 6-2 on both measures, the only two may votes coming from Horton and Rockett.

Horton, calling the votes "an informal sort of gerrymandering," was unhappy on several counts.

He said nobody had any warning the measures would be coming.

Ortbals: Downtown dreams coming true

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Downtown projects are moving out of the dream stage, according to Economic Development Director Alan Ortbal, and into the near future.

Construction of the Downtown Model Block on Niedringhaus Avenue, between Edison and Delmar avenues, began Tuesday.

New sidewalks, curbs, streetlights, benches and trees are being put in by Thiens Construction Company in a project that will last four to six weeks. The improvement's costing $88,000, are being paid for by a Community Block Grant.

Plans to extend the improvements onto Delmar down to 20th Street are currently being made. The streetscape improvements are being made as a result of the Tax Incremental Redevelopment Plan adopted by the City Council in 1988.

At the same time, development of downtown shopping center is progressing. Wal-Mart will evaluate Granite City this fall, Ortbal said, and the findings will be given to Wal-Mart's Executive Committee at its December meeting.

The city ran a letter campaign this summer that successfully drew Wal-Mart's attention. The letters were hand-delivered by Mayor Von Dee Cruse; Ortbal; Mel Wilmsmeyer, chairman, Magna Bank; Jim Eisenbeis, president, Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, and Bob Lombardi, vice chairman, Southwest Illinois Development Authority. The group met with Wal-Mart Real Estate Director West Doss and President David Glass.

Since then, Ortbal said, the city has maintained close contact with Wal-Mart, keeping it informed of economic developments in the city. The scheduled re-opening of American Steel Foundries, the planned development of a $10 million housing project at the Price Support Center and the winning of the state's 1988 Enterprise Zone Award have all been reported.

The announcement that Central Bank will grant the city a purchase option on its downtown parking lots places the city in control of about 10 percent of the necessary property for the shopping center, Ortbal said, and the city is negotiating with other downtown property owners.

Success in those negotiations would bring the total to 20 percent, he said, but otherwise the acquisition phase won't begin in earnest until Wal-Mart gives a positive response.

According to Ortbal, the city's Tax Incremental Finance District generated $70,000 and projections put this year's tax increments at $145,000. If Wal-Mart commits to the project — and with the passage of an amendment to the State TIF law — the figure could grow substantially, he said.

In fact, Ortbal said, the increments produced would be sufficient to pay all public costs of the development.

MADISON — The building in the 1200 block of Madison Avenue that housed the Chris Kaye Plastics Corp. for 40 years came tumbling down yesterday to make way for a Huck's Convenience Store.

Officials said the demolition symbolized a pattern repeating itself all over the country: reduced manufacturing emphasis and a shift toward a service economy.

The building's owner, Chris Kacaleff, sold it last week to Morton and Bayley Inc. of Carmi, Ill., the parent company of Huck's Convenience Stores. Huck's operates 98 stores, the majority of them in southern and central Illinois.

In its heyday, Chris Kaye Plastics Corp. employed about 40 workers in Madison. In recent years, the building has been used for little more than storage.

The new Huck's will have six to 15 workers, depending on its size and type of operation, which could not be determined at presstime.

The sale was handled by Krevovich Realty Co.

TV system on-line, but 'on-air' Council on hold

GRANITE CITY — The City Council's on-air debut has been delayed.

All the necessary equipment has been purchased, 4th Ward Alderman Dan Partney told the aldermen Tuesday.

The system is on line and the council meetings are set to be broadcast on Cencom cable, Partney said. Economic Development Director Alan Ortbal has found a person to run the system.

"We could be on the air next week," Partney said.

The only thing lacking, he said, is for the council to appropriate $2,600 to pay the person Mayor Von Dee Cruse said that, for a full year, that is a real bargain. Partney made a motion to do just that, but Second Ward Alderman Jim Miller said no.

Miller said he wanted to see some comparisons first. He said he wanted to see what, if anything, other city councils were paying to have their meetings televised.

Miller wants to see what other similar broadcast technicians are paid. So, he said, since the item wasn't on the agenda and the background he wanted had not been provided, he couldn't vote on the motion.

"Nobody is getting anything for free," Partney said.

Partney said Ortbal had done the research Miller desired.

Miller said he wanted to see it and made a motion to defer action on the motion. First Ward Alderman Everett Morelen seconded Miller's motion.

Partney's motion will be considered at the next City Council meeting.

If school were to resume tomorrow, no emergency days are taken and the school year is not extended, there would be a maximum of 167 student attendance days. If that is the case, the district has missed out on more than $480,000 in state aid so far, and loses an additional $33,400 per day.

Strike Some agreement, but not on major issues

(Continued from Page 1A) also disagree whether make-up days should be held to make up days lost due to the strike. "We still want to make up the days," Stoll said. Terry Salem, spokesman for the board's team, said the board is "very firm" in its commitment to maintain the current schedule. Under that schedule, if classes were to resume tomorrow there would be 167 class days and school would let out June 4. The only issue on the bargaining agenda that the two sides appear to agree on is benefits for retirees.

The board's latest offer would increase the amount paid to retirees for accumulated sick days not taken, to $10,000 from $9,000, and pay retirees' individual insurance cost from the time they retire (as early as age 55) until they reach 65.

The sides have met every day this week but took today off. The next negotiating session is scheduled for tomorrow at 2 p.m., and sessions may be held over the weekend, Stoll said.

There are no meetings scheduled for the union membership, but an emergency meeting can be called on short notice if necessary, Stoll said. The teachers' strike in Granite City is one of three going on in Illinois, according to Gall Purky, a spokesman for the Illinois Federation of Teachers. The others are in Harlem, near Rockford, and Hazel Crest, a suburb of Chicago.

A spokesman for the American Federation of Teachers in Washington said there are about 30 strikes going on nationwide, but the number is changing almost daily.

District 9's 8,300 students have been out of school since Sept. 6. Students attended seven days of classes before the strike began.

The teachers' two-year contract expired Aug. 14. The first negotiating session took place Aug. 17, and other sessions were held Aug. 23, 25 and 30, and Sept. 1, 7, 8, 16, 19, 20 and 21.

Wards Madson aldermen dispute boundaries

(Continued from Page 1A) sidered. (Second Ward Alderman Ron Grzywacz confirmed this.) Horton was also unhappy over the "crude" map used during a roughly 45-minute discussion period. "The map didn't even show the parcel of land in question," Horton said. "Nobody on the council is qualified to discuss it." "It hadn't been discussed beforehand. It was brought up spontaneously and done in a slipshod manner. I can't see why it (the property) can't be split up between the two wards."

The property in question touches on the boundaries of both the 3rd and 4th wards.

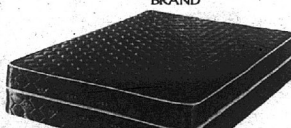

"We're not satisfied at all," said Rockett. "It just wasn't handled right."

The council still must approve a city ordinance formally placing the disputed property in the Third Ward. Horton and Rockett said they planned to see a lawyer about the legality of the council's actions.

Laurels still coming to Ginger Booker

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

Ginger Beth Booker, 19, classical pianist and inspirational singer, is starting her sophomore year at Bradley University, Peoria, where she is majoring in music education and music performance.

The daughter of Mrs. Bobbie Booker, Madison, she is attending Bradley on a full four-year music scholarship.

It was announced this month that Ginger has been selected as an Outstanding College Student of America for "outstanding merit in scholastic and leadership abilities."

Her credentials and biographical information will be published in the Outstanding College Students of America Directory, which is distributed to the nation's colleges, universities and major corporations for their use in student admissions, internships and employment.

As a college freshman, Ginger toured with the Bradley Chorus, a choral group which has won critical acclaim in performances throughout the United States.

Chorus members appeared in Niagara Falls and other areas in upper New York state, and sang in Michigan and Ohio, among other states last year.

Ginger is a member of the Bradley University Madrigals, a select group of 12 vocalists. They perform while wearing lavish medieval costumes.

The Madrigals present pro-

grams at various functions within the United States and make special appearances in foreign countries.

In her first year at college, Ginger was chosen to perform in a minor role with the Peoria Civic Opera during the 1987 fall-winter season.

With her selection as an outstanding college student, she is eligible to receive a $2,000 scholarship, one of 10 grants to be awarded by OCSA.

Although her talent and ambition still lead her toward the world of music and entertainment, Ginger plans to obtain her music educator's degree at Bradley, her mother said.

A well-known performer in the Quad City area since her pre-teen days, Ginger gained national and international recognition when she was named Miss Hemisphere Teen Talent queen, a title she won at the Miss Hemisphere International Pageant in Philadelphia in August 1983.

In winning the title over 46 international contestants in her age division — 11 through 15 — Ginger received a new 1984 Chevy Chevette, a 17-jewel diamond wristwatch and a full tuition-paid scholarship to the Philadelphia Academy of Theatrical Arts.

She also received a Miss Hemisphere crown, a diamond award necklace and a six-foot-tall marble trophy.

Ginger was featured as a correspondent and narrator on CBS network television in the St. Louis "Kids World" special on Sept. 1, 1984.

As a 12-year-old, she won the Fontbonne College Instrumental Music Award for her performance in the 3rd annual Music Festival Concert, a regional contest.

Ginger also was awarded a full scholarship — the Michael Holmes and Rhea Holmes Scholarship for voice and piano instruction — at the St. Louis Conservatory and School for the Arts Midtown, known by its acronym C.A.S.A.

She graduated from Marquette High School, Alton, after attending St. Mary-St. Mark School, Madison.

Church Women United forum to address poverty

Church Women United of the Quad City area will continue to promote its nationwide campaign against poverty of women and children with a special CWU Forum at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 27, at Grace Baptist Church, 2800 Edwards St. at Henry Street.

Doris Edwards and Joyce Schrader are serving as co-chairmen of the Forum, to which all area women are invited.

Participants are to bring their own "brown bag" lunch. Dessert and beverage will be provided by the host group.

Leadership at the Forum will be offered by a panel of speakers. Guest panelists include:

Roberta Hopper, Coordinated Youth Services, Pom Kirsch, Illinois Children and Family Services, and Sister Julia Hueskamp from the Griffen Center, East St. Louis.

This year's Forum will seek to explain and help to alleviate the poverty of women and children in this country, the chairmen said.

"It is imperative that we use all our resources, both human and material, to bring about economic justice for all," the Forum leaders said.

The action project in this community involves the cooperation of women from many churches, according to Mildred Jungels, a CWU spokeswoman.

Founded on a basic commitment to justice and peace, Church Women United counts among its milestones involvement in the establishment of the United Nations' participation in "Assignment: RACE," an effort during the 1960s to bring about racial justice; and development of a People's Platform for a Global Society in the 1970s.

Among the goals of the "Assignment: Poverty" program are:

- To develop "economic literacy."
- To strengthen the relationship between faith and action for economic justice.
- To work in coalition with others working for similar goals.
- To impact public policy.

Walton drops in on store

Billionaire Sam Walton felt right at home in Wood River on Sept. 13.

That's because he was visiting the Wal-Mart outlet, one of a chain of 1,200 discount department stores that he founded 25 years ago.

Walton, 70, stepped down from his position as chief executive officer of the firm in February, but he still is chairman, said company spokesman Becky Elliott.

Walton actively participates in operating Wal-Mart, she said. In addition to Wood River, the chain has other stores in Metro East.

Elliott said Walton spends at least three days a week visiting Wal-Mart stores around the country to get feedback from customers, hourly employees and management.

"He is a very down-to-earth man," said Tami Tokar, an assistant manager at the Wood River Wal-Mart Discount City. (See WALTON, Page 10A)

A lot of money, a lot of effort, but Granite City is home

TURN-OF-THE-CENTURY STYLING

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Samuel Johnson said the prospect of being hanged does wonderful things for one's powers of concentration.

Margaret Hopkins of the Downtown Neighborhood Restoration Society Inc. told Dan and Rhonda McDowell that the prospect of having several hundred strangers tromping through their home and inspecting it would do wonderful things for their motivation to complete its renovation.

The McDowells purchased the house, at 2237 Edison Ave., two years ago. On Sunday afternoon, they'll be showing it off to the public as part of the Restoration Society's annual house tour. (See related story on this page.)

"Mrs. Hopkins said you'll be surprised at how much you'll get done," Rhonda McDowell said.

Hopkins was right. The last few months have seen a flurry of weekend and weekday-evening activity at the McDowell home as its residents scurried to get it ready. It is one of six houses and a church that constitute the itinerary of the tour, which will run from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Margaret Hopkins spoke from experience when she advised the McDowells. Her own house has been on the tour twice, drawing a whopping 600 visitors in 1985.

"It sure encourages you to complete the things you've put off doing," Hopkins said of the prospect of being mobbed by possibly critical strangers.

The sign in front of the McDowell house proudly proclaims: "Now entering McDowellville, Pop. 5, Dan McDowell, Mayor." Inside, everything is tidy and gleaming — from the new staircase in the foyer to the tidy two-room attic "penthouse" where Rhonda's mother, Alice Oxford, resides.

Two years ago when they purchased the house, say the McDowells, it looked quite different. The falling-down porch was only a suggestion of what lay within. It had at one time been a rooming house, with all the nicked-up, gouged-out wear-and-tear that such use brings. There was fire damage and there were layers of paint on the woodwork.

Hundreds of hours of do-it-yourself work later, Rhonda, 36, says, "Central Hardware knows us on a first-name basis."

They say now they're sorry they didn't take "before" pictures.

But back then they had second thoughts when, shortly after purchasing the house, they attended one of their first DNRS meetings. The featured entertainment was the movie "The Money Pit."

"There's a lot of things we've done and a lot of things we want to do," Rhonda McDowell added ruefully, "but we're running out of money."

"We looked at each other and said, 'Oh, no!'" Rhonda said.

They paid $45,000 for the 13-room, three-story house and three-and-a-half-car garage. That was just for starters.

The McDowells are understandably reluctant to say precisely how much money they have spent fixing up the 77-year-old house. Property assessments are much on everyone's mind right now.

Boat owners sometimes say that a boat is a hole in the water into which you pour money. An old house is a similar sort of critter.

Take the kitchen, where a row of new appliances manages to balance esthetically with a four-piece set of new "antique" furniture, made for them by an Amish craftsman.

Something "old," something new. Anything borrowed?

"Just money," Dan, 37, said cheerfully.

"There's a lot of things we've done and a lot of things we want to do," Rhonda added ruefully, "but we're running out of money."

Besides the new staircase and converted attic, they knocked out a wall to enlarge the kitchen. The downstairs has new wallpaper throughout, and the living room and dining room have wall-to-wall carpeting. All uncarpeted floors have been sanded, woodwork stripped, and two bathrooms have been added.

The McDowells say the DNRS, which has about 40 families on its rolls, was invaluable as a source of how-to-do-it and where-to-find-it information. His father, a legitimate jack-of-all-trades, was also instrumental.

When the house they owned in the 2600 block of Iowa Street became too small eight years ago with the addition of their second child, the McDowells considered moving to the Edwardsville area. But they both work at St. Elizabeth Medical Center (as does Rhonda's mother) and they relish the time and aggravation they save by being able to walk to work.

Moreover, they say they have noticed a "ripple effect" in the DNRS historic district. As more people fix up their homes, other residents are motivated to do the same.

Said Dan: "That's really what it's all about — bringing the whole neighborhood up."

The McDowells say they are committed to the community of Granite City and to their present house. Dan McDowell plans to run for alderman.

Rhonda emphasized that they have no plans to sell, anyway. Though both are still relatively young, "McDowellville" will apparently stay where it is.

"The next move we make, Randy Irwin (a local funeral director) will help us with," Rhonda said.

Lost In This Space

The Shopping Zone

(A little eerie music please, maestro... doo-dee, doo-doo, doo-dee, doo-doo...)

Picture a man, me, embarked on a simple trip to the grocery store for some incidentals. Little did I know that I was about to step into...

The Shopping Zone! (Up music to crescendo... duh-duh-duh-duh-DUNK!) It started innocently enough. Got the frozen vegetables, all right. Ditto the milk and eggs.

Couldn't find my brand of beef cold, at first. Check that. Had it all right, nice and cold, too, since it was way in the back of the cooler box.

Get the bread, and on to the checkout lanes. Having already been sternly informed on past trips that, no matter how few items, one must unload the little shopping basket onto the conveyor, I oblige and set the empty basket on the floor beside the clerk. Little pedestal provided for such purposes doesn't seem adequate to the task.

Clerk promptly snatches it from the floor, eyeing strangely. Sharp-eyed, she spots the slit in the loaf of bread, left there by demented bread slasher or whoever unpacked it. "Wanna exchange that?" she asks.

Wonder about efficacy of sarcasm in this case. (Oh, heck no, I picked that one out special. Of course I want to exchange it, you ninny.) Decide against it. Sure, I say, moving off toward the bread aisle, when I'm brought up short. "Hey! Wanna pay me first? You're holdin' my line."

Oh, sure, here you go. Hand her a check. She flips it over to check the computer approval on the back. Eyes widen with suspicion. "This ain't your card," she says, cracking her gun.

Well, no, but the automatic teller stole my card yesterday, for the third time. The check has my name on it as well as the name of the card owner. It is signed by me and the computer approved it, as it has all previous transactions like it. Never had any problem before.

"New rule," she snaps. "I'll have to get this approved by the manager."

The half-dozen people behind me start muttering. Might get ugly soon.

She stomps off. I decide this is a good time to get an unslashed loaf of bread. I step lightly over the chain blocking the unused checkout aisle adjacent. My toes catches it, and I crash sideways into a tabloid rack, where a space alien leers goggled-eyed at me. I hear laughter. I get my bread and, returning, step way over the offending chain this time.

Resuming my position at the head of the checkout line and trying my best to look cool, I lean casually against the counter. I swear I didn't touch it, but the shopping basket with my goods in it crashes to the floor. I peer over the counter. The foam egg carton has burst open, and 11 of the 12 eggs therein are oozing yellow all over where the clerk is supposed to stand.

I hear a snicker from the line and glare around, trying to find the malefactor. Nobody will look at me and several look half-strangled from choking back laughter.

The clerk bustles back and says (Do I imagine it, or is she truly disappointed?), "The manager says it's OK this time, but you'll have to get your own card."

She spots the mess on the floor. Her face purples like an eggplant.

"Clean up on aisle two!" she bellows into the public address.

When she hands me my receipt, I hesitate. "Could I have change for this five?" I ask timidly.

She looks at me with loathing. "You'll have to get that at the convenience counter."

I slink off to that inconvenient place to wait several minutes for help. The lady who had been behind me in the checkout line strolls up.

"Looks like I'm following you around," she says.

"I hope your insurance is paid up," I say, and she laughs, bless her.

I get my change, and as I'm leaving, I hear the convenience clerk tell her, "Sorry, you can't have $3 worth of quarters, you can only have $2 worth. It's the rule."

At least, I think, as I flee across the parking lot, I wasn't alone in... The Shopping Zone.

In case you think I made this up, you're wrong. Not even Rod Siering could do that.

House tour features cars and costumes

The Downtown Neighborhood Restoration Society Inc. was formed in 1973.

It now has 40 families on its rolls who meet once a month to share information on home improvements and discuss ways to improve the neighborhood.

The society has planted more than 1,000 trees in the 30-block area designated as a historic district by the City Council four years ago.

The district's boundaries are Niedringhaus Avenue to 24th Street and Madison Avenue to Adams Street.

Tickets to the house tour Sunday are $3 or $4 in advance. To order tickets or get more information, interested individuals may call LaDonna Walden at 451-1710.

The other addresses on the tour are 2150 and 2154 Edison Ave., 2119, 2103 and 2116 Cleveland Blvd. and Concordia Lutheran Church, 2301 Grand Ave.

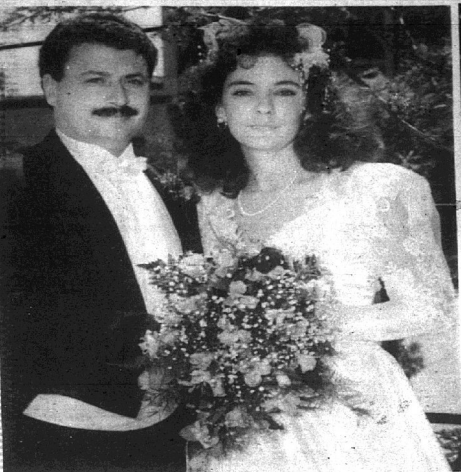

There will also be a vintage clothing display in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Horse-drawn carriage rides ($2 per person) will be available at two sites, and a strolling barbershop quartet will serenade the tourists.

Antique cars will be parked in the driveways of several homes, and two antique fire engines will be on display in the 2200 block of Edison Avenue on the parking lot of First Presbyterian Church.

Paula 23:3 ... "He restored my soul."

This is one of the most quoted Scripture verses of the Bible. And what a message comes flowing through this statement!

He Magnify God! Exalt Him! Lift Him up in praise and He will turn you. All things work together for good to them who love God. God knows what he is doing in your life. He can make evil turn and work for your good.

He will restore your soul. Cast every care upon him because he cares for you. Accept his Spirit now. His presence now. Feel your soul soar into his bosom, and feel it being restored!

THE LAW AND YOU
BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When a husband and wife obtain a divorce, sometimes disputes arise regarding visitation with the children and the payment of child support. In these situations, the non-custodial parent will sometimes become less and less interested in seeing his children. There may also be a corresponding lack of interest in continuing child support payments. Sometimes the parents will attempt to enter into an agreement whereby there is a termination of child support payments in exchange for a waiver of visitation rights.

Illinois law provides that the modification of a child support obligation is a judicial function which is to be administered exclusively by the courts. In other words, a father and mother should not merely take it upon themselves to enter into an agreement of this nature without the court's approval.

Some may ask why a mother and father should not be allowed to enter into an agreement which is mutually beneficial to both parties. It is important to remember that a court is obligated in marital dissolution proceedings to protect the best interests of the children. If former spouses were allowed to modify a court-ordered child support obligation, the new agreement may benefit the parents while adversely affecting the children.

In one recent case, a husband and wife were divorced in 1975, and the wife was awarded custody of the two children. The husband was ordered to pay $40 per week in child support. Eventually the husband fell behind in support payments, and difficulties arose between the parties regarding the father's visitation with the children. In 1977, the father and mother entered into an agreement whereby the mother dropped charges against him for the past-due child support in exchange for the father relinquishing his right to visitation with the children in the future. The parties never sought court approval for this agreement.

In 1984, the mother petitioned the circuit court contending that the father was delinquent in paying child support. The father noted the existence of the agreement and argued that no past-due support was owed. The Illinois Supreme Court refused to recognize the agreement because the parties did not attempt to safeguard the children's interests by establishing in court that the children would have adequate financial support and that ending visitation was not detrimental to the children. Because the father and mother failed to obtain judicial approval of their agreement, their agreement was not enforceable.

Bob Doe, a burn victim." They represented a cross-section of residents who are helped by agencies receiving support from the Tri-City Area United Way.

The suit asserted that "collectively, members of the legal profession have not historically provided financial support to the United Way in relationship to their means or to their numbers when compared to other members of the community."

The complaint, "filed" by Illinois Assistant Attorney General Dennis J. Orsey, who is heading up the lawyer campaign for the United Way, asked the "defendants" to "voluntarily provide relief" according to a giving guide based on the defendants' years in practice: under three years of practice, $100 or more; three to five years, $200 or more; more than five years, $500 or more.

"The best way to reach lawyers is to speak their language—legalese," Orsey said. "We have no idea if it will work."

But Orsey said it had worked in other communities.

Copies of the complaint were served to Konzen and Eric Robertson, who accepted copies also for the other lawyers in the firm of Luaders, Robertson and Konzen.

Robertson, a former president of the Tri-Cities Area United Way and former United campaign chairman, said lawyers see many different corners and strata of the community in the course of their daily practice. As a result, he said, they should be particularly conscious of how much need there is for the agencies funded by the United Way, such as the Phoenix Crisis Center, the Visiting Nurse Association and 20 other area agencies.

Robertson said he believes that local lawyers will respond "appropriately" to the complaint.

The complaint was served by Granite City Police Capt. Kip Pomeroy, who told Robertson and Konzen they had 10 days to respond to it.

They didn't try to run. Good thing, Pomeroy is a champion pistol marksman.

If the complaint strategem works, it will make other professional groups more conscious," Orsey said.

Little time still left to join Illinois' carrier

Illinois men still have the opportunity for the next two or three weeks to join the U.S. Navy and serve aboard the "Lance of Lincoln's" namesake aircraft carrier—USS Abraham Lincoln (CVN 72).

Eighty Illinois recruits will be sworn into the Navy by Gov. James R. Thompson in a special ceremony at the Old State Capitol Building, Springfield, on Wednesday, Oct. 19.

They will then report as a group for training at Great Lakes Naval Training Center, near Chicago. Upon graduation from basic training and follow-on occupational training, they will report for duty aboard the Navy's newest nuclear-powered carrier.

The armed forces have offered "buddy programs" before, so friends could enlist and serve together. However, this is the first time Illinois residents have had the chance to enlist in the Navy as a group, train together in basic training and then serve as a group on the ship named for Illinois' most famous leader.

Men with high school diplomas, ages 17-35, and in good health are eligible to join. Enrollment in this special program is limited to the first 80 qualified applicants.

Local men interested in joining the Lincoln group may call Petty Officer 1st Class F. J. Fleener at the Navy Recruitment Office, 3675 Nameoki Road, 451-0402, for further information.

Currently under construction, the USS Abraham Lincoln will be the fifth nuclear-powered carrier of the Nimitz class. Its 1,062 foot length is longer than three football fields placed end to end and its flight deck covers 4.5 acres.

When the carrier's air wing of nearly 90 aircraft is aboard, the USS Abraham Lincoln will be home to nearly 6,000 sailors.

Edgar urges 'preventive medicine' to cut down on accidents, injuries

By Rick Arnold

Staff affiliate

BELLEVILLE—Illinois Secretary of State Jim Edgar spoke of a theme familiar to his audience at the St. Clair County Medical Society's public affairs dinner: preventive medicine.

Edgar didn't talk about preventing illnesses, though. His focus was on preventing accidents and injuries.

"While the most important reason for preventive medicine is saving lives, it is also economically sound to prevent illness and injury," Edgar told the crowd of about 250 doctors, county officials and other guests on Sept. 13. Edgar cited 1987 federal statistics showing that 12 percent of the Gross National Product (GNP) went to health care. That averaged out to $2,000 for each American, he said.

"You can't vaccinate against injury, but you can educate against injury," Edgar said. To illustrate his point, Edgar said experts had predicted there would be 20,000 AIDS cases in Illinois by 1991. But because of AIDS education, now experts are predicting only 8,000 cases by 1991.

Another way of preventing injuries is by making Illinois roads safer to travel, Edgar said.

In 1980, there were 2,000 highway deaths in Illinois. But that number has fallen to 1,600 in each of the last three years, Edgar said. He spoke of three traffic safety programs aimed at young people, started by his staff: a "Don't Drink and Drive" program for teenagers, a state safety program for school-aged children and Project Panda for preschool children.

Recent crackdowns on drunk drivers have also prevented numerous injuries, Edgar said. "In 1985, there were 65 people in St. Clair County who had their drivers licenses suspended because of drunk driving. In 1986, there were 1,400 people in St. Clair County who had their licenses suspended because of drunk driving," he said.

Edgar said he was glad to point out, though, that in 1987, overall DUI arrests decreased by 6 percent and DUI arrests of teenagers decreased by 18 percent.

A WEALTH OF TRAINING

By Dr. Claude Hiles

Podiatry has come a long way since the days when the local barber was asked to treat corns. Today, a degree as a Doctor of Podiatric Medicine (D.P.M.) can only be earned after a student has successfully completed four years of premedical study and four years of study of podiatric medicine. Following this course of study are internship and residency. After passing surgical boards and examination, the podiatrist is qualified to perform foot surgery. This puts him on a plane with a medical surgeon in his ability to undertake surgical procedures involving the foot.

The services performed by a podiatrist include the routine trimming of corns and calluses, treating fractures, sprains, skin disorders, and orthopedic problems, as well as performing corrective surgery. An airport in Southern Illinois won't do Missourians violence

To the editor:

For years we have been reading of efforts to build a commercial airport facility on the east side of the Mississippi River. For years we have been hearing of efforts of Missourians to kill such an effort.

Now we hear of a new effort to open part of Scott Air Force Base to commercial traffic and once again we are hearing voices of opposition from Missouri.

A civilian airport at Scott "would be a waste of taxpayers' dollars, considering all of the improvements that have been made at Lambert," the former chairman of the Missouri-Louis Metropolitan Airport Authority was quoted as saying.

This view has always been, and will continue to be, short-sighted and dangerously protectionist. It is based on the naive assumption that there is a limited supply of commercial opportunities available to support an airport and that economic gains in Southern Illinois mean offsetting economic losses to eastern Missouri.

It postulates a set number of jobs, workers, and money available to any one region of the nation and suggests that Lambert has already filled St. Louis' quota of opportunity.

Why do so many Missourians believe that the economic prosperity of St. Louis is dependant on the economic violence inflicted on Southern Illinois? The truth is, there is no reason to believe growth in Southern Illinois will not help spur development in some dying communities throughout the St. Louis and St. Louis County region. In fact, economic growth throughout the St. Louis metropolitan area, as a result of a second regional airport, can move that offset the short-term losses sustained in areas surrounding Lambert.

As an example, Washington,

D.C., has three major commercial airports and is one of the fastest growing — non-governmental growth — metropolitan regions in the nation. One of the fastest growing regions in the nation is in Fairfax County, Va., surrounding Washington's Dulles Airport.

To see the potential growth associated with extending Scott AFB as a commercial facility, one need only look at the growth associated with completely shutting down a major military installation. While one would never suggest completely shutting down Scott, the analogy can be made that the economic development associated with simply extending its runways for commercial use can be staggering.

The Office of Economic Adjustment at the Pentagon released a study on the effects of 100 base closings since 1961, finding that:

• A total of 139,138 civilian jobs are now located on former defense facilities, replacing 93,424 jobs lost when the military left.

• Twelve four-year colleges, 32 postsecondary vocational schools or community colleges, and 14 high school vocational-technical programs have been established on former bases.

• There are 53,744 college and post-secondary students, 7,864 high school vocational-technical students and 3,110 trained workers being educated on the old bases.

• Office-industrial parks or plants have been established at 75 of the former bases.

• Forty-two of the former bases are being used as municipal or general aviation airports.

These figures show that using military installations can produce an economic windfall for the communities surrounding the base. This list does not include the countless retail stores, hotels, delivery services, auto leasing companies, communities, industrial parks, and other development that naturally grow around a busy airport. New jobs could be created and thousands of opportunities gained for people moving into the St. Louis area.

Naturally, these new jobs and residents will mean greater income for those businesses already established in the St. Louis metropolitan region, including those around Lambert Field.

A sampling of newspaper clippings tells the same story. "Cities Find Conversion of Old Bases A Boon to Economies" (the New York Times); "Base Closings Benefit Towns" (the Atlanta Journal); "When the Military Moves Out, Business Can Move In and Make A Town Proper" (the Nation's Business); "Finding New Uses for Bases That the Military Closes: Model Apartments in Massachusetts, Airports in Texas and Pennsylvania" (the Christian Science Monitor).

The economic opportunities available with the development of a new regional airport are endless.

Business and working persons throughout the St. Louis metropolitan area should embrace the opportunity to develop a commercial airport facility in Southern Illinois. We should not allow the protectionist, "head in the sand" attitude of many of our elected representatives to force us to miss this unique opportunity.

Economic boom for one part of the metropolitan region does not mean economic bust for everyone else.

The idea of opening a regional airport at Scott Air Force Base is sound and one which should be pursued.

Two more hospitals victims of underfunding

To the editor:

A 437-bed Chicago hospital and a 30-bed facility in south central Illinois closed their doors forever in September, bringing to 14 the number of Illinois hospitals that have shuttered in the past two years.

St. Anne's Hospital, Chicago, and White Hall Hospital, White Hall, both served large numbers of poor patients.

They are the latest victims of a combination of financial problems stemming from Medicaid reimbursements that don't keep pace with the costs of providing care for poor patients.

However, the real problem with these closings is the areas in which the hospitals were located. Of the 14 Illinois hospitals that have closed since 1986, most fell victim to financial problems because of Medicaid. And they are the hospitals that the state of Illinois most needs.

St. Anne's is located in an area of Chicago the federal government has said is already medically underserved.

The same was true for nine other Chicago hospitals that have closed since 1986.

Patients who once went to White Hall Hospital now will have to travel more than 15 miles to reach the next closest facility.

The financial stress that contributed to the closing of these institutions is unparalleled in recent history.

Illinois hospitals today are beset with Medicare cutbacks; a half-billion-dollar burden of indigent care; spiraling liability premiums plus related costs; and a regulatory climate that squeezes hospital resources which should be spent on patient care.

The final straw for both St. Anne's and White Hall was the underfunded Illinois Medicaid program and failure by public officials to follow a federal mandate to provide funds to hospitals treating a disproportionate share of indigent patients.

At St. Anne's, 42 percent of the patients were Medicaid recipients. At White Hall, 35 percent of the patients served were on Medicaid.

According to federal law passed in December 1987, disproportionate share payments are to be made to hospitals that are dependent on Medicaid for their financial existence.

The Illinois Department of Public Aid has not paid a nickel of the estimated $15 million needed to keep disproportionate share hospitals, such as St. Anne's and White Hall, solvent.

Illinois' $15 million disproportionate share allowance was to take effect July 15, 1988.

Wants Social Security 'notch' years revised

To the editor:

This is an urgent message to all Social Security "notch" victims — those who are being deprived of part of their Social Security benefits due to an act of Congress which went into effect in 1979.

This injustice most harshly affects those born between 1917 and 1921 but also affects those born between 1921 and 1928 to a lesser degree.

Despite years of work by many grassroots organizations to get Congress to correct the "notch" numerous bills have been introduced in both the House and Senate have died in committee and have never been brought to the floor for a vote by the entire body.

On Sept. 7, the latest notch victims rally will be held in Washington, D.C., to demand that Congress release H.R. 1917 and/or H.R. 3798 from committee and send them to the House floor for a vote.

It is urgent that all notch victims write immediately to Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, Rep. Andy Jacobs and Rep. Bill Archer (address all at the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.) and urge them to release either or both of these bills from the House Ways and Means Committee for a vote by the full House of Representatives.

A letter need not be long — just a couple of lines stating the above will be sufficient.

It would be very helpful if members of veterans organizations would urge their groups to express their concerns, since the notch years include those who served in World War II.

This election year is our best chance to get Congress to correct the grave inequity inflicted upon millions of Society Security beneficiaries almost 10 years ago.

Nameoki, downtown growth

Central Bank of Granite City (formerly the Trust and Savings Bank) is temporarily moving out of downtown Granite City, after 78 years. There is some sadness in seeing such a long tradition end, but the move sets the stage for five kinds of happier news:

- The spacious 1909 Edison Ave. structure, still in good condition, will be transferred free of charge to the city government, which has a need for additional space. The bank is vacating one block from City Hall.
- In relocating CBGC's headquarters to its branch at Nameoki and Fehling roads, the former American Heritage Bank, the owners will expand the Nameoki-Fehling building to accommodate 70 more employees. It will be extensively remodeled inside and out, resulting in an entirely new appearance at one of the city's major intersections.
- The Nameoki Road bank will become the cornerstone of the Central Plaza shopping center, where improved parking and traffic flow will be created and facilities will be built for additional tenants.
- By making its considerable downtown parking space available to the municipality, the bank is enabling Granite City to take a giant step toward acquiring sufficient land to proceed with the long-awaited downtown business area revitalization, including construction of a department store.

Central Bank plans to establish a new branch downtown once the basic renewal program has been carried out.

An additional development, the planned move of Central's holding company - Central Banc System Inc. - from Granite City to Fairview Heights, affects about 10 employees. That decision does not create great joy here, but the new site undeniably is closer to the center of the $289 million banking network that includes Carlinville, Marine, Fairview Heights, Glen Carbon and Granite City. The building that has been chosen is immediately across the street from the St. Clair Square shopping center.

Central's board chairman, Drew Karandjoff, believes the changes will bolster "the growth of Granite City, both in the downtown area and the outlying area." This could be the precise result, in view of the Nameoki Road expansion projects and the major impetus being given to downtown rebirth.

Agencies meet varied needs

Aiding 22 local agencies, the Tri-Cities Area United Way fund campaign was launched Sept. 13.

In editorials this month, services by specific agencies are being discussed. They include:

- Mobile Meals Provides 90 home-delivered meals five days a week to the infirm or handicapped. The meals are prepared to meet individual dietary requirements.
- Piasa Health Care Specializes in the prevention and treatment of alcohol and drug abuse. During the past school year, 623 Quad City area children aged 5 to 8 participated in "Beginning Addictions Basic Education."
- This program is conducted within local schools and utilizes puppets to teach children how to say no to drugs. Peer leadership sessions for high school students are also conducted.
- Protestant Welfare Association Provides services to low-income families and others in need of emergency help through a food pantry and a donated clothing distribution center.
- Assistance also is provided with prescriptions and loaned medical equipment such as walkers, crutches, canes and wheelchairs.
- Sexual Abuse Care Center Conducts programs and services for victims of rape or of child sexual abuse.
- Also provided are individual and group counseling, legal and medical advocacy, a speakers bureau, a 24-hour telephone hot line, in-service training for medical and legal professionals, volunteer training and a resource file.

Eighty percent of the current caseload involves child victims. The agency focuses on public education and prevention services as well as giving help to victims.

Salvation Army Provides a variety of services including direct assistance for food, clothing, medication, household items, emergency shelter and transportation, plus disaster relief services.

Youth and adult recreational and spiritual programs also are offered.

Senior Aides Provides employment and training for persons 55 and older. About 45 older persons are provided part-time employment and training opportunities at government and social service agencies in the Quad City area through this program.

Tri-Cities Area Association for the Retarded Provides transportation and recreational opportunities for retarded citizens from the Quad City area. Activities include bowling, skating, day camp, field trips, dances and participation in the Special Olympics.

Prices live on in our memory

Granite Citizens are glad that Geraldine Price was able to be present when the St. Louis Army Support Center was named the Charles Melvin Price Support Center on a sunny day in July.

Her husband, the local congressman for 43½ years died in April. Now she, too, is gone. Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Blessed Sacrament Church, Belleville.

"I can't help but think how thrilled he would be at the dedication today," Mrs. Price responded when signs designating the local base as the Price Center were unveiled. And Melvin and Geraldine Price will be long remembered for their dedication to the Metro East region.

Has mixed feelings on strike; unions still backbone of nation

To the editor:

Right now in our city our schools are on strike. A lot of us have mixed feelings about the teachers striking. Take a minute and read this letter and you might learn something.

Unions are the backbone of this country.

Without them, and their organization, we would not have any of the conditions or benefits we have now.

Whether or not you're working in a union shop, you're still getting a lot of the conditions the unions have fought for.

So when you see a picket line, don't cross it, no matter what.

If you don't believe this letter, talk to someone who has fought for union rights - or you can just read your history books.

Unions are part of all of us at one time or another.

PAUL E. REAGAN

Picket line may reflect attitude

To the editor:

The Granite City teachers are too lazy even to walk their picket line. A picket line should be walked, not sat.

Seeing the teachers out in their lawn chairs, having their little chitchats, enrages me. I imagine some of these people probably conduct their classes in the same manner.

I have been a strong union member all my adult life. I strongly believe in unions for the betterment of working conditions and wages. I don't, however, believe in unions for the purposes of greed.

The teachers of Granite City have the best benefits and are the highest paid teachers in the area. With all of their benefits and considering the amount of time worked, they are very well compensated. The cost of living is at a standstill, but still they want a 10 percent wage increase each year.

Their greed is costing our children dearly. The strike is also very costly to the teachers themselves, because they are quickly losing the respect of the citizens of Granite City.

MICHAEL RAY DILLIER
1745 Venice Ave.

Teachers entitled to pay raise

To the editor:

I would like to let the teachers of District 9 know that many of us citizens are behind them and wish them well. I think they are entitled to every bit of their 10 percent raise request.

I do not believe they should give in to the school board, which spends unlimited amounts of our money on sport activities.

As the husband of a recently retired teacher, I know what a few extra dollars can mean to a teacher. If we want good education, we must be able to pay for it.

MARVIN L. MCGEE

Board too involved in politics

To the editor:

I am the mother of five, three in Granite City schools. The School Board at present has a reputation of being a "power base" for political patronage.

Anytime power politics enters into a facet of public office, the losers are the public and, in this case, the children.

The board knew in advance the contract was expiring. The board would not appoint a negotiating committee until the last hour, or give the team power to negotiate all areas.

The board has a special trust placed in it to keep the highest quality of teachers to deliver the education our children will so desperately need in years to come. This trust should include negotiating in good faith with the teachers.

Shirley Stoll, representing the teachers, would sit at the bargaining table around the clock to reach an agreement. The board should be willing to do the same. If this cannot be accomplished, both parties should agree to binding arbitration at once, for the good of our children.

The board has stated that if teachers' demands were met, there would be a $4,000,000 deficit. I do not want higher taxes. Yet, do not forget that most political taxing districts create their own "pork barrel" and "feeding trough."

Those already in the feeding pen are the chief advisors to the board. When things get tight, my whole family economizes and sometimes does without. Instead of steak, hamburgers are on the menu. This is not aimed at the teachers, but at high-salaried administrative positions.

I wonder if our board has ever discussed whether each job is essential. This session should be done with only board members attending.

I question many of the spending habits of administrators. Their salary goes on even if children are not in school.

Perhaps, if all salaries were suspended, real attempts at negotiations would take place and the administration could see ways to remove spending that is not needed.

Citizens are tired of being pawns of board action or inaction. Their indifference attacks all of us financially and affects our children. If the board cannot understand this, the people should seek persons to serve on the board in the future who do have our interest at heart.

On to a new set of friends

Like dipping a toe into an icy branch, I ventured into Granite City to begin a new job in the wee hours Monday morning, knowing little of my destiny, but hoping for the best.

Today I'm totally submerged - some might say in over my head - in the duties of managing editor of East Side Publications, the company that produces the Granite City Press-Record and Journal, the Cahokia-Dupo Journal and the East St. Louis News Journal.

During the last nine-plus years, I served in similar capacity at four of our Journal sister papers in the Alton market. I left behind some very dear friends. But the offer of a bigger operation was one I dared not pass up.

I'm not new to the news business, nor am I new to this area, having been a Metro East resident for all of my 32 years. Among family members and friends I count many in Granite City. Before I'm done I intend to make a whole series of new acquaintances. Public officials and community leaders will be hearing a lot from me in coming weeks, as will many "average" individuals. Opinions of the newspaper's service - no matter the source - are extremely important to me.

You'll find I'm a philosophical sort. I see the best in a person before the worst and tend to ignore what I might have heard in the past until I've found out first hand what an individual or a story is all about. I like to think of that as a positive trait, since reporters, by and large, are a skeptical bunch.

I was hired, in part, to inspire the award-winning talent that this small but dedicated staff has shown in the past. That is exactly what I intend to do. No one takes more pride in an outstanding news product than the editor.

Around here the catch phrase is going to quickly become "status quo is not good enough." No matter how good we think we are, we're nothing if not willing to improve.

To that end, I welcome any and all comments: Call me with criticism, praise, features, photos, barbs, pointers and platitudes. But do call. An uninformative editor is a mark for early retirement.

I'm too young to retire.

What do you think about the Morton Downey Jr. Show?

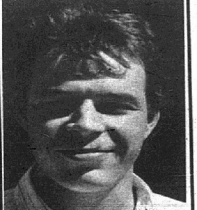

What do you think about the Morton Downey Jr. Show, the late-night talk show that has caused much controversy since it first aired in St. Louis about a month ago on KTVI?

Keith Wagner, Granite City
"It's definitely not what you call wholesome entertainment. The entertainment world must be pretty bad off to put someone that rude and obnoxious on TV. It's really sad if the general public seeks that kind of entertainment."

John Moran, Granite City
"I don't pay much attention to it. He's not really honest about his feelings during the show. He just tries to get a reaction from the audience. But I do think he makes quite a lot of sense about the subject matter at the end of the show."

Clayton McCollegan, Granite City
"I think it's all right. It's a pretty good show. I don't watch much TV, but I like that show. He's up-to-date. The shows are on current issues."

Central Bank renovation spreads to neighborhood

GRANITE CITY — Central Plaza Shopping Center is coming to Fehling and Nameoki roads. Central Bank plans to start exterior renovation of its Nameoki Road bank later this month and the new and expanded facilities are scheduled to become the bank's new headquarters early next spring. At the same time, Central Bank-financed developers of the American Village Shopping Center — to be renamed Central Plaza — are planning to give it a facelift. The renovated bank will be the center's cornerstone. "As of now we are planning a major resurfacing and reorganization of the parking lot that will improve the condition and help eliminate cross traffic and erratic traffic flow," a spokesman for the developer told Central Bank on Monday. "Also, extensive landscaping will complete the overall facelift of the center."

Karandjeff
Board Drew Karandjeff said the Nameoki expansion and move is in keeping with the population growth and increased customer demand in the Granite City area.

He hopes the building at 1909 Edison Ave., given to the city to help the planned downtown renaissance, will be preserved as a historical landmark. "Since 1910 we've been very much a part of the history of Granite City," Karandjeff said. "Many of our existing customers have grown up right alongside of us. We're very thankful for their allegiance. We'd love to honor their relationships with us — and our relationship to the Granite City community — by our renewed commitment to this major revitalization that will attract business, people and dollars to the downtown area."

The Central Plaza developer's spokesman said structural renovations and the creation of more tenant space in the shopping center are in the proposal stage and would require the cooperation of the present tenants before any work could begin.

About real estate

By Don Campbell

Paying extra principal can have advantages

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I have been paying about six months' principal with each of my mortgage payments. But my husband says there is no advantage in this if we are not going to live here long enough to pay it off. We plan to be here about three or four years.

S.R.

Answer: Your husband's rationale is common enough, and it might be valid if, in addition to the extra payments you are making, there are some other costs involved.

For instance, in refinancing a home, where there are add-on costs, it rarely pays to do it unless you plan on staying in the same house for at least two more years and will be shaving, at least 2 percentage points off your interest.

But, in simply accelerating your principal payments, doesn't your husband's argument that it "doesn't pay," sound a little bit like the person who refuses to go on a diet "because I'll just gain it back?"

I don't know what the actual dollar figures are in your case, but let's take a hypothetical instance. You've bought a $75,000 home, paid $15,000 down and you have a 30-year, $60,000 mortgage at, we'll say, 10 1/2 percent. That would make your payments for principal and interest, $548.84.

So in four years you move and put the house up for sale and, at this point, you have reduced your principal from $60,000 to $58,885. Your equity is $16,115, your $15,000 down payment plus the $1,115 reduction of your principal.

If your house has appreciated 10 percent in those four years (this will vary all over the landscape, of course) you should be able to sell it for $82,500. After you pay the broker's commission (6 percent, we'll say, or $4,950) and pay off your lender ($58,885) you will walk away with $18,665, or $3,665 more than your original down payment.

Now, instead, let's say that during those four years you paid your regular payment ($548.89), but added an additional $100 each month to principal. Again, you sell it after four years and have had a 10 percent appreciation in the value of the house.

At this point, however, you have reduced the principal to $52,651 ($5,349 more than under the standard pay-off schedule). When you sell for $82,500, pay the broker's fee ($4,950) and pay off the balance owed the lender ($52,651), you are netting $24,899, $9,899 more than your original $15,000 down payment, and you are closing $5,899 more than under the straight pay-off schedule.

Naturally, it has cost you $4,800 (48 times $100) to achieve this, but just in four years you have saved $1,124 in mortgage interest and have a cool $24,899 available for a down payment on your new home, vs. $18,665 under your regular amortization. Make it isn't worth it; maybe it is. You be the judge.

Mortons open Cee-Jay

Cecil, Susan, Jack and Sharon Morton recently announced the grand opening of Cee-Jay Auto Body, 2123 E. 23rd Street, Granite City. At the same time, the Mortons announced the shop's membership in the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce. Jack and Cecil have been doing body work since the early 1960s and have attended many training programs through the years to keep up with the constant changes in the automotive field. Their goal is to make it the best auto body shop in Metro East. Cecil and Jack handle everything from major repairs to minor facelifts for cars, trucks, motor homes and trailers. They say no job is too big or small, too old or new. Estimates are free and so are towing and storage while the vehicle is awaiting repair. All the Mortons are looking forward to greeting old and new friends at their new location.

Illinois exports up 40 percent

DCCA Director Jay R. Hedges said export activity by Illinois firms during the first half of calendar 1988 was up 40 percent over the same period in 1987, evidence the department's efforts to boost overseas sales are paying off. "For two decades, the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs and its predecessor agencies have worked hard to expand trade frontiers for Illinois companies. Our momentum has been building recently, and the latest U.S. Department of Commerce figures show gratifying results," Hedges said. "The value of Illinois goods shipped to foreign countries was nearly $4.5 billion through the first six months of this year compared to $3.2 billion in the comparable months last year."

The U.S. Department of Commerce began tracking state-by-state export performances in January 1987.

In all of 1987, Illinois firms sent $6.9 billion in goods overseas, a mark Hedges said should be easily surpassed in 1988.

Of the $6.9 billion exported by Illinois companies in 1987, 29.2 percent went to Western European countries, 19.7 percent went to Asia, 30.3 percent went to Canada and the remainder went to other destinations, including South America, Mexico, Communist Europe, the Middle East, Australia and Africa.

The Commerce Department figures show the heaviest export activity was in the area of machinery sales, where in 1987 40.2 percent of exporting by Illinois firms took place.

Next came electronic equipment with $929 million (13.5 percent), followed by chemicals with $746 million (10.9 percent).

Advantages of leasing vs. buying an auto listed, discussed

By Neil F. Hartigan
Illinois attorney general

Q. I am considering leasing a car. What are the differences between leasing and buying?

A. Some of the many factors to consider are a comparison of initial costs and continuing costs, the value you place on equity and ownership.

Usually your initial cash outlay when leasing is less than the down payment you might need to buy a car on a car.

When leasing a car, the lessor may require you to put down a security deposit, the first and last periodic payment, and a "capitalized cost reduction" which is the initial payment. Be sure to include in your considerations such additional initial expenses as insurance, sales tax, license fees, and other standard new car charges, which apply whether you buy or lease. When leasing, such costs may be negotiated with the lessor paying for some items.

In comparing the continuing costs of leasing with buying, you may want to talk to your dealer or leasing company representative. Based on the car you select, the agent can show you how to calculate and compare continuing cost payments for each.

You may find you may pay substantially the same amount for leasing a car as you would for buying the vehicle. The difference is — at the end of the lease, you do not own the car.

You will also want to compare any difference in the monthly payments between leasing and buying, and any special benefits the lessor might offer such as free or low-cost insurance, repairs or maintenance.

You always can try to negotiate these and other costs with the lessor, asking that they be included as special clauses in your lease.

Equity may be a persuasive factor for purchasing a car rather than leasing it. If you buy a car on credit, you are building equity as you pay off the loan principal.

When you complete your car loan payments, you own the car. However, when you lease a vehicle, you are, in effect, merely paying rent for the car's long-term use.

Cork: Miracle material bears mother nature's trademark

Imagine one product, one substance, that is impermeable to liquids and gases, more elastic than plastic, and more durable than leather or rubber. Imagine a material that is four times lighter than water and able to tolerate 14,000 pounds per cubic inch and still snap back to its original shape. Toss in that this product is fire-retardant, a good insulator to sound and vibration, and can be aesthetically pleasing as well. Such demands could have any engineer reeling. But fortunately, no man is forced to devise such a miracle material: Mother Nature already has.

It's been said that when Mother Nature made cork, she over-designed it. Included in this already impressive list, cork also has a high friction coefficient and a lot thermal conductivity, it's easy to work with, cost-effective, natural and self-replenishing. No wonder that cork can be found in everything from baseballs to the space shuttle, from shoes to hydroelectric dams, and from gaskets to floors.

Beyond cork's most recognized uses in wine bottle stoppers and bulletin boards, few people are aware of the importance cork plays in their daily routine and, even less so, where cork comes from. In reality, today's $300,000,000 cork industry derives from a tiny acorn. A variety of oak trees, native to the Iberian Peninsula, generates and regenerates the world's supply of cork.

The Quercus Suber is a forest tree that has trunk bark that can be stripped every nine years, after the tree is 20 to 25 years old. These special oaks live more than 150 years and, when harvested, yield the unique cork bark that can be transformed into innumerable shapes, sizes and uses. Cork's extraordinary versatility comes from its unique cellular structure of 150 million to 200 million, 14-sided cells per cubic inch.

More than 51 percent of the volume of this non-fibrous structure is air, forming a network of densely packed air-filled cells that act like a cushion and give cork its buoyant and compressible qualities. Most of the world's cork is grown in Portugal and Spain and imported by U.S. manufacturers to be processed into a wide variety of products.

Yet no one application seems to take full advantage of cork's many attributes. For example, cork is lightweight, having a specific gravity of only 0.25, which is a tremendous asset to users of industrial floatation devices that measure liquid levels.

Its buoyancy means little to the builder who is interested in cork's compressibility for expansion joint filler that is specified in the construction of bridges, tunnels, dams, airports and sewage disposal plants.

Cork's resilience is highlighted in flooring applications. Interior decorators also have long recognized the distinctive elegance that cork ceiling tiles and wall coverings bring to a home or office.

Cork's beauty is not only decorative but extremely functional, as it is a thermal and acoustical insulator. Myriad of American homeowners have discovered the effectiveness of cork in dampening family room or recreation room racket.

For centuries, wine and champagne have matured in bottles with airtight seals — yes, cork. For centuries, wine and champagne have matured in bottles with airtight seals — yes, cork.

Cork also offers a safety factor with its low thermal conductivity. With a K-factor as low as 0.25, it is also fire-retardant. Only the surface will char, giving off no cyanides, chlorides or other toxic gases.

Certainly, the world of wine connoisseurs would be unimpressed without cork closures. For centuries, wine and champagne have matured in bottles with airtight seals — yes, cork.

Cork's resistance to oxidation, and are impervious to chemical interaction.

French archeologists recently unearthed a cork stopper from the third century AD firmly capped a bottle of wine. The cork was in perfect condition and the wine drinkable. That's vintage.

Shopping at home subject of booklet

A new booklet on the benefits of shopping at home has been published by the Direct Marketing Association Inc.

The free, 14-page publication, "Shopping at Home," was developed by the DMA to heighten consumer awareness about the reliability of home shopping and to answer questions posed by infrequent shoppers in a recent DMA focus group study.

To receive it, writers, Consumer Services Dept., Direct Marketing Association, 6 E. 43rd St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

The association also publishes the "Great Catalog Guide," which lists more than 630 catalogs in 25 product categories.

Consumers who wish to expand their shopping horizons can receive this catalog of catalogs by sending a $2 check to the DMA at the above address.

The "Shopping at Home" booklet is designed to help infrequent buyers recognize the broad range of possibilities available to them, some of which they may already be using, but do not recognize as home shopping.

"This booklet was designed to provide the necessary information to make an informed purchase decision by the current shop-at-home buyer as well as those who have not yet tried shopping by phone or mail," said Lisa Caugherty, DMA shop-at-home director.

Complete customer satisfaction is all-important to the member companies of the Direct Marketing Association, Caugherty said.

Vegetables have favorite colors

If you are not satisfied with your tomato crop, the solution may be as simple as changing the color of mulch in the garden.

According to "National Wildlife" magazine, researchers have found that vegetables respond favorably to particular wavelengths of reflected sunlight.

Tomato plants grown over red mulch produced 20 percent more top-quality tomatoes than those grown over black plastic.

Potatoes and green peppers, on the other hand, show a distinct preference for white mulch.

Gaffner says manager switch hasn't hurt campaign

By Rick Arnold

COLLINSVILLE — Though his campaign has gone through two campaign managers in the last four months, Republican congressional candidate Bob Gaffner says his campaign is not in trouble.

"The perception is that the campaign is in disarray, but that is not the case at all," Gaffner said Sept. 16.

Bill Atwood, Gaffner's latest campaign manager, has gone back to his position with the Illinois Commerce Commission. Gaffner said that Atwood will still be a paid advisor.

Atwood's predecessor, Jim Newberry, left the campaign in June. He could not be reached for comment.

Gaffner said he was not surprised by Atwood's departure.

"We always knew that his responsibilities to the governor would take him away," Gaffner said.

He said the vacancy in the top spot in his campaign is not a major cause for concern.

"We had intentionally planned some 'down time' after the primary," Gaffner said. "In essence, I'm my own campaign manager anyway."

Gaffner said interest in his campaign has increased since the primary. He said his campaign could always use more money, but he only expects to get about another $15,000 from the National Republican Congressional Committee, since it is nearing the legal limit for contributions.

Gaffner would not give exact financial information about his campaign, saying he would wait until he releases his next Federal Election Commission report in mid-October.

'Vicious' pit bull executed

EDWARDSVILLE — After a court order by Associate Judge Dan Stack of Madison County, a dog was "humanely euthanized" at the Madison County Animal Shelter, Virgil L. Holdeman, administrator of animal control, said last week.

The Illinois Animal Control Act, Chapter 8, Paragraph 365, says any dog declared to be a "vicious dog" may be humanely dispatched.

"This amendment to the Animal Control Act applies to any breed of dog that becomes vicious and improperly handled. It just happens that this first case involved a pit bull."

State employees giving to charitable campaign

Gov. James R. Thompson has kicked off the second State Employees Charitable Appeal campaign, announcing Director Janet Ottwell of the Illinois Department on Aging as this year's campaign chairman.

"Every year state employees contribute to their favorite charity, demonstrating their generosity and concern for their communities," said Thompson.

"Last year state employees contributed more than $1 million in this year we hope to surpass that level. I encourage every employee to join the effort."

Thompson serves as honorary chairman of the campaign, which allows employees the opportunity to contribute to the United Way or the United Negro College Fund. Each employee can contribute to as many as two of the charities through payroll deductions, but can contribute cash to any or all of them.

"This is your opportunity to support a myriad of private agencies that meet needs in your community and all communities throughout Illinois," Thompson said in a letter sent to state employees. "These agencies are partners with state government and we depend on them to deliver many local services."

The campaign started Sept. 13 and runs for eight weeks.

Each state agency has selected a coordinator who will distribute literature and payroll deduction forms to employees. The campaign was made possible through the Voluntary Payroll Deductions Act of 1963.

Costello supports drug bill

By Rick Arnold

Staff affiliate

BELLEVILLE — U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello said Saturday he believes more federal money is needed to combat the drug abuse problem.

"Most people don't like to admit it, but we have lost the war on drugs," Costello said at a press conference after a meeting with representatives of the Southwestern Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

Costello, D-Belleville, met with SILEC officials at the St. Clair County Jail to get their input on the 1988 Omnibus Drug Enforcement Act, which has been debated on the House floor for the past two weeks.

"I have asked the law enforcement community to make their feelings known on issues relating to enforcement," Costello said. He noted that SILEC represents all of the counties in the 21st Congressional District.

The bill calls for $4.2 billion to be spent over the next three years on prevention of drug abuse and enforcement of drug laws.

"Costello said more money should be appropriated, but he understands the country's financial situation."

"Given the deficit this country faces, the (House) committees felt it was a realistic figure," Costello said.

Among the provisions of the bill are:

- Allowing the death penalty for anyone convicted of a drug-related murder or anyone convicted of trying to elude police to avoid serving a prison sentence on a felony drug charge.

Costello supports the death penalty provision, which has already been passed by the House.

"An increase in law enforcement assistance grants to state and local governments of from $230 million to $250 million annually. The bill would also allow local governments to apply for grants directly to the Justice Department instead of having to go through state governments."

"Spending $30 million in 1989 for drug education and abuse prevention programs aimed at youth gangs."

Giving the Drug Enforcement Administration $620.6 million and the FBI $148.9 million for law enforcement activities.

The bill would also provide $1.3 billion for the federal prison system, an increase of $450 million over 1988.

Increasing funding for drug treatment programs and reducing the waiting period for people to receive drug treatment.

Establishing a cooperative Latin American regional anti-narcotics force and cutting off foreign aid to countries which are uncooperative in the war against drugs.

Costello said the only way he would vote against the bill was if amendments were brought up on the House floor that he could not support. declined to comment on what those amendments might be.

Costello said the bill should pass the House.

"There's been great bipartisan support," Costello said. "Some of the amendments are Republican and some are Democratic."

One such amendment, sponsored by Rep. Bill McCulloch, R-Ill., which has already passed the House, removed the "Brady Amendment," which would have established a seven-day waiting period for purchasing a gun.

McCulloch's amendment instead directs the Justice Department to develop a system to identify felons who try to buy guns.

The Brady Amendment was named for Sarah Brady, wife of former presidential Press Secretary James Brady. She has lobbied for tougher gun control laws since her husband was shot March 30, 1981, during an assassination attempt on Pres. Ronald Reagan by John Hinckley Jr.

Costello said he did not support the Brady Amendment, but he does support the McCulloch Amendment.

Bob Gaffner, Costello's opponent in the November election, said Friday he did not support the Brady Amendment, either.

But he would have proposed an amendment requiring each gun manufactured to have distinctive shell casings in order to make tracing a gun's owner easier.

"It would be another vehicle in the arsenal of law enforcement," Gaffner said.

He said the National Rifle Association supports his amendment.

Gaffner said he would vote for the drug bill if he were in office.

Schlafly group markets video on Dukakis furlough program

Phyllis Schlafly is marketing a new video under the label of Fairmount Productions.

The 28-minute video — Justice On Furlough — is advertised in a flier that was distributed at the Republican National Convention in New Orleans as "Breitbart, Devastates Dukakis. The true story of how Massachusetts discovered that convicted killers were roaming their streets."

The reason for the Fairmount Productions label? "I thought it was a good name," Schlafly said. Schlafly lives in the Fairmount Addition in Alton.

"(Justice on Furlough) explains the story to people who may not have heard about it. I think it's a dumb idea to let murderers sentenced to life without parole out on furloughs."

"In Massachusetts, they're not locked away for good; they're let out on the street. It's that liberal notion that everybody can be rehabilitated."

The 80,000 members of Eagle

Forum, Schlafly's support organization, will be the main target group for the video.

Producer Geoffrey Botkin of Prime Time Design in Maryland

"The people of Massachusetts in mass disapprove of the policy."

Geoffrey Botkin

said he is trying to market the video to the networks and PBS as a journalistic piece.

"I've spoken to some middle management kind of people at the networks," Botkin said.

"But as of yet I do not have any broadcast contracts in hand. I'd like it to be seen as journalistic work. It is pertinent for the American viewer, and it deserves to be seen by a national audience."

Botkin said the video took six weeks to produce and was completed on Aug. 24.

Schlafly smiled as she heard that Botkin was trying to market the video to the networks.

"It's a cut-and-dried rule," she said. "They don't show anything they don't produce. He can try, but it's just a waste of time."

Justice on Furlough is based on research done by free-lance journalist Robert J. Bidinotto and Lawrence Eagle Tribune reports from Susan Forrest and Barbara Walsh.

"People seem to think that we are in some way trying to wound Mr. Dukakis now that he is running for president," Botkin said.

"It's not true. Mr. Bidinotto had been working on the story long before Dukakis was in the presidential campaign. We requested interviews with the governor and the governor's office when we were making the video, and they declined."

"The conclusions of those people we interviewed seemed to be very one-sided. The people of Massachusetts in mass disapprove of the (state) administration's policy."

Real estate tax system called unfair

Madison County Supervisor of Assessments Robert Harris of Granite City agrees with complaints that Illinois' property tax laws are unfair and should be changed.

"It's absolutely unfair," Harris said. "The tax system in Illinois could stand a complete overhaul."

St. Clair County Assessor Sam Flood has called for property (real estate) taxes to be abolished in the state. The property tax system is outdated and inequitable, he said, and a state commission should be appointed to examine alternatives.

"In my opinion, there's got to be a more equitable means of raising revenue," Flood said. He said some of the most economically depressed areas in St. Clair County — including East St. Louis — have the highest tax rates.

"As areas become blighted and businesses move out, the taxing districts have to increase rates," Flood said. "The people who remain just can't bear those kinds of rates, and the exodus continues."

As assessed valuation declines, higher rates are needed to raise the money needed to maintain services, Flood said.

"This is causing some serious hardships for a lot of people," he said.

Flood said he does not have a solution to the problem, which is why he wants a state panel formed to study it.

He said State Sen. Kenneth Hall and State Rep. Wyvetter Young, both Democrats from East St. Louis, support his proposal.

Many people have expressed support for his effort, Flood said.

"Maybe a major overhaul of the whole tax system is what we need," he said.

Harris said real estate taxes generate about $14 million in revenues annually for school districts, municipalities, townships and other taxing districts in Madison County.

Those revenues would have to be replaced if the taxing districts were to continue to provide services that citizens want and need, he said.

If real estate taxes were abolished, Madison County would lose significant tax revenues from major industries, Harris said. Shell Oil Co. pays about $6.5 million yearly on its refinery in Wood River, but Shell and other major corporations with substantial real estate holdings here may pay their income taxes elsewhere, he said.

Financing schools by some method other than the real estate tax would remove some of the pressure from property owners, Harris said.

He said local school districts and community college districts account for 65-68 percent of the tax bill in Madison County.

One positive aspect of real estate taxes is that taxpayers can read their tax bills and see where their tax dollars are going, Harris said. If they have questions or complaints about spending, they can take them to the taxing bodies that receive the taxes, he said.

With income and sales taxes, the taxpayer has little if any idea where the money is going or what it is used for, said Harris.

Douglas L. Whitley, president of the Taxpayers Federation of Illinois, agrees in theory that taxpayers stand a better chance of influencing property taxes than other taxes.

"But the property tax system is complicated, and it's stacked against the individual taxpayer," he said. "There's little real chance of truly influencing spending at all levels. There are too many taxing bodies."

Whitley said, however, that abolition of the property tax would be impractical in Illinois because local governments depend so heavily on it for revenue.

Property taxes generate $7 billion annually in the state. All that money goes to local governments, he said.

However, Whitley said, it is "reasonable and legitimate to try to reduce reliance on the property tax."

One way to reduce the property tax burden would be for the state government to fund several functions now financed by local government, Whitley said.

He said financing of pensions, elections, the judicial system, and most of the expenses of public schools logically could be transferred from local to state government.

Such changes, he said, would allow property tax reductions, but state government would need additional revenue, much of which would have to come from increased income taxes.

Whitley said individuals pay about 85 percent of income taxes, but only about 50 percent of property taxes.

Greater reliance on income taxes and less on property taxes would benefit businesses and put a bigger burden on many individual taxpayers, he said.

Madigan may be most important and powerful man in Springfield

You've probably heard of Michael J. Madigan, but he's not exactly a household word in Illinois. It just isn't his style to circulate throughout the state, meeting and greeting the voting public.

Nevertheless, he may be the most important and powerful man in Springfield, and he isn't the mayor. He is speaker of the House of Representatives.

MOST BELIEVE Illinois today would have a higher state income tax, instead of the current 2.5 percent individual tax and 4 percent corporate tax, had it not been for Madigan's opposition as the legislative session ended in June.

Gov. James Thompson was for a tax boost and, eventually, so were the Senate president, Senate minority leader and House minority leader. Whatley wouldn't budge, and the tax wasn't changed.

This may be good or bad, depending on your point of view. Tax-conscious citizens didn't want to shell out any more money. But those who benefit from a variety of state programs, including education, felt they deserved extra funding. Whether the sentiment, Madigan called the tune and made it stick.

No one person controls everything, of course, and Madigan has only one vote he can cast directly on any statewide issue.

BUT THROUGH ALLIANCES with others, such as House Majority Leader Jim McPike of Alton, the speaker does have a way to achieve a majority for whatever position he takes.

In mailings around the state, the Chicagoan is pointing with paternal pride to the performance of his constituents.

Regional Roundup

By Bill Winter

manance of legislators in their January-June 1988 deliberations. He says, "The General Assembly accomplished much during the spring session, enacting solid proposals to solve some of our state's most serious problems."

"I am proud of our achievement. We added $200 million directly to the state's share of education funding, without asking taxpayers to pay additional taxes."

"WE WILL FINALLY witness sweeping changes in Chicago's public schools. Parents, teachers and principals will have more influence over the direction of their local schools — and give children the educational advantage they deserve."

"We have addressed serious wastewater problems across the state, streamlined our sales tax system, and established mandatory auto insurance."

"We have invested in our own economy by making sure the White Sox will continue to play in Chicago. Keeping the team in Illinois will preserve a strong baseball tradition and important related revenues."

"We made sure that child victims of crime will be protected by our judicial system — not punished again by the very process designed to protect them."

Can he be more specific? Certainly.

GUARDING CHILD VICTIMS
"A package of bills to protect children from sexual abuse was passed. It increases penalties against child-pornographers, kidnappers, and those who use children for prostitution," Madigan said.

"It expands the counseling services available to abuse victims and their families, and gives judges the discretion to consider the effects on victims before granting court continuances or delays."

"And it permits certain out-of-court testimony by victims under age 13 in civil cases, to prevent courtroom trauma."

KEEPING THE WHITE SOX
"A new stadium will be built, utilizing funds primarily from the Chicago hotel-motel tax."

"Strong leadership was necessary to preserve the major-league franchise, which provides thousands of jobs, $100 million a year in related revenues, and national exposure for our tourism industry."

STREAMLINING TAXES
"A bill was passed to simplify and reform the state sales tax system. It will improve collections, especially for out-of-state purchases by Illinois firms, and close a tax loophole on photo finishing."

"Millions of dollars generated by this reform will be used by 233 communities to bring their wastewater treatment systems into compliance with federal Environmental Protection Agency standards; the remainder of the money will be returned to local governments."

REFORMING SCHOOLS
"To improve education for Chicago's children, I established a task force of parents, business leaders, teachers and lawmakers which hammered out a comprehensive plan to reform the public schools."

"It creates local school councils of parents and neighborhood leaders and establishes a strong oversight authority to review the reform process."

"It cuts the board's central administration by $46 million and eliminates the current Board of Education, to be replaced with a community-based board membership."

MANDATING INSURANCE
"After 14 years of debate, Illinois joined ranks with 39 states that compel drivers to carry auto liability insurance."

"They must do so by Jan. 1, 1990, and carry proof of their coverage."

HOLDING DOWN TAXES
"Regarding a proposed 40 percent increase in the state income tax, I was not convinced of the necessity for $1.3 billion in new taxes from individuals and businesses."

"House Democrats stopped the Thompson tax plan."

"Instead, government can use $700 million in revenue from natural economic growth to fund essential services."

"This allows $200 million for education, increases for mental health and other services, and funds for unpaid bills."

MADIGAN SUMS UP
"The Legislature presented the governor with a balanced budget. State government must live within its means, just as Illinois families do every day."

With a platform like that, there might soon be a call for Madigan to run for the presidency, except for two factors:

He doesn't seem to be interested in any other job, and tax proponents say his admitted power could boomerang against him; they contend he is taking too inflexible a stand against providing needed services.

33rd Degree for three from area

Those elected to receive the 33rd Degree at Grand Rapids, Mich., on Sept. 27 include three local area Scottish Rite Masons: Jack R. Donovan, O'Fallon, an H&R Block office manager;

Nelson S. Church, Belleville, a retired insurance agent.

And Harry G. Seper Sr., Belleville, St. Clair County public defender.

One of the nation's major Masonic meetings will occur in Grand Rapids between Sept. 23 and 28 when the annual session of the Supreme Council of Scottish Rite Freemasonry for the Northern Masonic Jurisdiction takes place.

A total attendance of more than 2,200 33rd Degree Masons and their wives is expected from the 15 northeastern and midwestern states comprising the 436,000-member Northern Jurisdiction as it conducts its yearly gathering in the western Michigan city for the first time since 1934.

The feature of the 176th annual event will be the conferral of the degree on 172 Scottish Rite Masons who were nominated and elected to receive the honor a year ago at Boston.

"The degree is awarded for outstanding achievement in the fraternity or for contributions to others reflecting credit on Freemasonry."

Supreme Council members will be joined by leading Freemasons from other sections of the United States, Canada, Europe and Latin America to hear reports by sovereign Grand Commander Francis G. Paul of the host group.

"This year marks the 250th anniversary of the formation of the 'Haut Grades' or higher degrees of the Masonic fraternity in France."

A feature of this year's meeting will be a special exhibit, "Fraternally Yours," which will be on display at the Gerald R. Ford Library and Museum in Grand Rapids through Nov. 30.

Bike lane discussed for new Clark bridge

The new Clark Bridge may include a special lane for bicyclists, says Dale Klohr of the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Klohr discussed a proposal for a bicycle path on the new bridge during a meeting of a citizens' group called the Alton Lake Committee.

Klohr said state officials first must get about $5 million in federal discretionary funding in order to build the $70 million bridge.

Klohr praised a petition drive begun in July by state Rep. Jim McPike, D-Alton, in support of the bridge.

Area residents could notify state and federal officials in a similar fashion to voice support for placing a bicycle path on the new bridge, Klohr said.

'Eight Men Out' takes lively look at 1919 'Black Sox' ball scandal

By Frank Hunter
Staff affiliate

When wit Kin Hubbard declared that "knowing all about baseball is just about as profitable as being a good whittler," he probably had not read "Eight Men Out," Elliot Asinof's exhaustively researched study of the 1919 baseball scandal.

Asinof's 1963 book became a best-seller and now "Eight Men

Out" (4 stars) has been made into an entertaining and informative film with vivid characters, a jazzy musical score by Mason Daring, and a deft screenplay and direction by John Sayles.

It isn't necessary to know everything about baseball to appreciate "Eight Men Out," although diehard fans will savor the film for recapturing the energetic post World War I period marked by the infamous Chicago White Sox scandal. The "Black Sox" affair became front-page news, colorfully reported by the Chicago Tribune's Hugh Fullerton and columnist Ring Lardner (who wrote the immortal line "Although he is a very poor fielder, he is also a very poor hitter").

Interest in the events of those days waned until publication of Asinof's book, which revealed the intricate details of the 1919 conspiracy between eight members of the White Sox and several notorious gamblers who arranged to throw the World Series to the Cincinnati Reds.

The fixing of the Series took place nearly 70 years ago but it always has astonished Sayles that talented men would agree to such a betrayal. It resulted in the appointment of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis as baseball's new commissioner, who severely punished the players despite their acquittal by a grand jury.

"Regardless of the verdict of the juries," Landis said at the time, "no player who throws a ballgame, no player who under-takes or promises to throw a ballgame, no player that sits in conference with a bunch of crooked players and gamblers where the ways and means of throwing a game are discussed and does not promptly tell his club about it, will ever play professional baseball."

According to the film, Chicago players had some legitimate grievances against tight-fisted owner Charles Comiskey (Clifton James). Comiskey routinely fined and dined sportswriters and public officials while paying players minimal living expenses, thereby earning his team the derisive "Black Sox" label because he skimmed on the laundry budget.

If expenses were absurdly low, salaries were worse, with the exception of second baseman Eddie Collins (Bill Irwin). Team players earned from $2,500 to $5,000, well below salaries paid to less-talented men on other clubs.

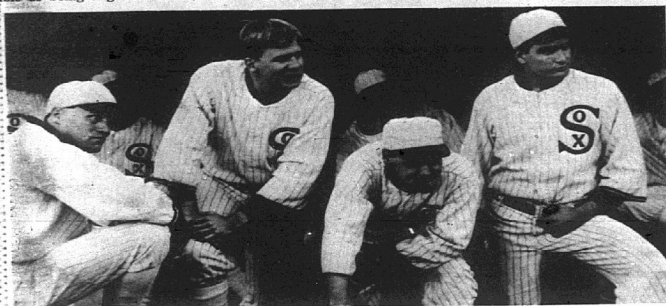

As a result the ballplayers were divided into those who accepted bribes and those who didn't, the latter including third baseman Buck Weaver (John Cusack) who played errorless ball and took no money for the fix, and leftfielder "Shoeless" ("Say It Ain't So") Joe Jackson, played in the film by D.B. Sweeney. Both men died without seeing their names cleared.

The main gamblers were Abe "The Little Champ" Attell (Michael Mantell) and Arnold Rothstein (Michael Lerner), fixers who cheated each other—as well as the players who were in on the scheme—out of most of the promised bribe money.

Sportswriters Lardner and Fullerton, played by director Sayles and Studs Terkel, respectively, covered the grim affair deeply saddened by the story they were compelled to write, knowing how miserable it was for loyal fans who believed in the integrity of the sport and the innocent team players barred for good from the game.

After seeing Sayles' arresting chronicle, which offers plenty of rife humor and strong ensemble performances, some people may agree with Philip K. Wrigley's observation: "Baseball is too much of a sport to be called a business, and too much of a business to be called a sport."

New roller coaster coming to Six Flags

This fall as Six Flags guests soar on the wings of the Condor one last time, a massive structure of twisted steel will begin to loom in the background as construction begins on a major, new roller coaster.

The coaster is slated to premier in April 1989 and will cost $1-million.

Riders will sit two abreast in seven-car trains and journey through 2,330 feet of high-speed spirals, a double corkscrew, a sidewinder, steep drops and a 360-degree loop. Throughout the two-minute ride, passengers will soar at speeds reaching 60 miles per hour through wooded terrain in the USA Section of the park.

"Six Flags' new coaster is unique in that its track is relentless. Riders are never given a reprieve from its frenzied route. They will find themselves being propelled through twisting, spinning and looping features almost continuously," according to a spokesman for Six Flags.

T.S. Eliot's 100th celebrated with plays

By Deborah Reinhardt
Staff affiliate

The intellectual community in St. Louis will celebrate the 100th anniversary of T.S. Eliot's birth by discussing and presenting some of his work.

Earl Holt, treasurer for the T.S. Eliot Society, said most artists go in and out of style and fashion in time.

Thomas Stearns Eliot was born in St. Louis on Sept. 26, 1898, in a house on Locust Street. His father, Henry Ware Eliot, was a businessman; his mother, Charlotte Champe Stearns, was a poet.

Eliot's ancestors settled in Boston. However, the poet's grandfather in 1834 moved to St. Louis after graduating from Harvard and founded Washington University in 1863.

T.S. Eliot lived in St. Louis until he was 16, lived in England during most of his adult life and became a British citizen in 1927. He returned to St. Louis twice to present lectures. Eliot pursued four careers — editor, dramatist, literary critic and poet. However, he is regarded by many as the foremost poet in the 20th century.

"Most of the T.S. Eliot Society people are convinced of Eliot's enduring importance," Holt said.

In 1948, Eliot was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature. His "Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats" inspired one of the most acclaimed and successful shows in the history of musical theater — "Cats" by Andrew Lloyd Webber.

Activities commemorating Eliot's birth will be sponsored by the T.S. Eliot Society and Washington University.

The society will present a four-day conference Sept. 22 through 25 at the Chase Hotel, with several activities at the Missouri Historical Society, St. Louis Public Library and First Unitarian Church. Lectures, poetry readings, a banquet and performances of plays by Eliot are planned. Conference registration is $40.

"The Elder Statesman" will be performed at 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 22, at the History Museum, Jefferson Memorial Building, Forest Park, by the Magic Circle Ensemble of Minneapolis. "Murder in the Cathedral" will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 23, in Graham Chapel, Washington University.

Subsequent performances will be at 8 p.m. Sept. 24, 2 p.m. Sept. 25, 8 p.m. Sept. 30. Those who wish more information may call (314) 889-5543.

A banquet for 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 24, is available for $35. Those who wish more information may call the First Unitarian Church at (314) 361-0505.

Washington University will host "T.S. Eliot — A Centennial Appraisal" Sept. 30 through Oct. 2. Scholars will read and discuss Eliot's work. The conference fee is $25.

A Washington University Assembly Series lecture, "T.S. Eliot: The Test Classics," will be at 11 a.m. Sept. 28. It is free. Those who wish more information may call (314) 889-5285.

Union nixes plan to resume practice

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — Despite an offer from the District 9 school board to let the teams resume practicing, high school sports in Granite City remain in cold storage.

As of today, 37 varsity sporting events have been lost to the work stoppage (see the K Corner). That includes tomorrow's

Steve Trittschuh U.S. soccer team out of Olympics

Although the U.S. soccer team raised some eyebrows with a couple of ties, the dream for a medal ended early this morning at the Olympics in Seoul, South Korea.

The Soviet Union topped the Americans 4-2 today, knocking Granite City native Steve Trittschuh and the U.S. team out of Olympic competition. The Soviets and Argentina will advance out of Group C to quarterfinal competition on Sunday.

The USSR finished at 2-0-1 in group play for five points. Argentina was next at 1-1-1 for three points. The Americans were 0-1-2 for two points, the same totals as the South Korean team. The top two teams in each of four groups advance.

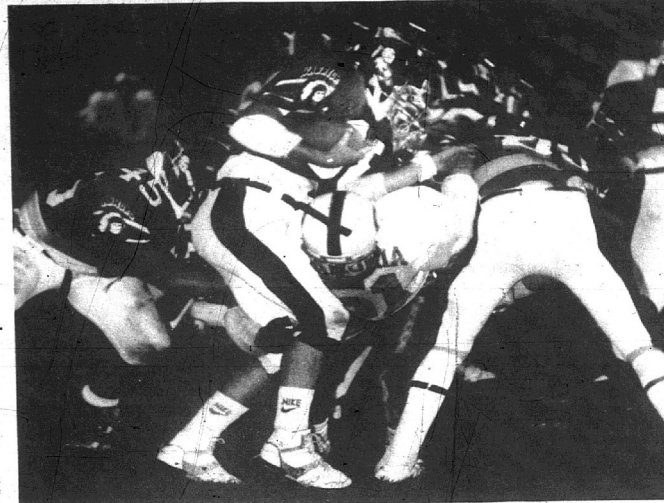

The Americans gained a surprising 1-1 tie with Argentina on Sunday and played a scoreless tie with South Korea on Tuesday.

scheduled football game between the Warriors and the Collinsville Kahoks at the Football Bowl in Collinsville.

The first two football games lost weren't officially cancelled until the morning of the game. But as time marches on the football team is getting farther behind the competition in practice time and physical condition.

So according to state rules, once a district has been out at least seven days but not more than 14 days, a football team needs at least three days of practice before it can play a game. Once the district is out

REMEMBER WHEN? Harken back to the days when Granite City High School used to play football. Actually, it was only three weeks ago when Terry Noud fought to gain yardage against Cahokia.

Cheatham takes track crown

By Joe Senter
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — Ray Emiling won the U.M.P. late model stock car feature Saturday at Tri-City Speedway. But Bert Cheatham might have been the biggest winner.

Emiling took the lead on the fourth lap and survived several yellow flags. He took the early lead away from Jim Durbin and held on for the full 25 laps. Mike Wallace was next at 1-1-1 for three points. The Americans were 0-1-2 for two points, the same totals as the South Korean team. The top two teams in each of four groups advance.

Ron Fisher spun in the third turn on the 12th lap and got restarted again only to get in a bad crash on the last lap into the dirt barrier around the light poles.

Fisher suffered injuries on that crash and was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Following Emiling at the checkered flag was Cheatham second and Wallace third. Cheatham thus picked up enough points to claim the track championship for the 1988 season. Jake Seets beat out his brother John and Rick Bayer in the sportsman's car feature event.

The late model stock cars will hold their championship races this Saturday, with the winged sprint cars coming to the speedway on Oct. 8. The U.M.P. Race of Champions will be Oct. 15, with champions from many states and tracks competing at Tri-City.

Feature event winners at Godfrey Speedway on Friday included Kevin Gundaker in the super modifieds. Andy Hillsbury in the sprint cars and Maury Bargetzi in the street stocks.

Revived Trojans aim for .500

By Mike Blackshire
Correspondent

MADISON — It's like a brand new season for the Trojans, who can raise their record to 2-2 with a victory over Breese Central on Friday at Sam Dymas Memorial Field.

After a disappointing 0-2 start, the Trojans scored a big 18-13 win over Pittsfield last week. With a win over the struggling (1-2) Cougars tomorrow, the Trojans would suddenly be at .500 on the season. Only a week ago, a .500 record would have been a reasonable goal for the season.

Now it could be just a stepping stone. Madison coach Don Smith never thought his team should have gone 0-2, and he still has high expectations for this season.

"I guess we finally woke up and saw what was happening to our season," Smith said. "At the end of the year I think we are going to look back and feel like kicking ourselves for losing those first two games."

The Trojans played improved dramatically against Pittsfield, but they have to prove they are capable of playing at that level every week. If the Trojans can beat Breese Central, one of six Cahokia Conference teams on Madison's schedule, it would be a welcome confidence boost. But a loss could be devastating.

"We put ourselves in a hole early in the season, so we really have got to come out and beat Breese Central in the next game," Smith said. "If we come out with the same intensity we did against Pittsfield, we should be able to win the game."

The Cougars will come to

SIU SID Weller works Olympics

By Dave Jefferson
Correspondent

EDWARDSVILLE — Not all the blood, sweat and tears expended during this month's Olympics in Seoul, South Korea, will come from the athletes.

Steve Weller, the sports information director at SIUE, has a lot of 16-hour days to look forward to as a member of the USA Media Services team in Seoul. Weller was one of only 20 American SIDs selected to work the Games.

Weller got his start as the president of the National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association in July. Weller is spending his time in Seoul preparing press brochures and compiling statistics for baseball, basketball, gymnastics and bowling for a horde of hungry reporters who have descended on the Games.

Weller was one of only 20 American SIDs selected to work the Games. At the 1984 SIDs convention in San Diego, Weller was asked to volunteer for those Games. Originally, the deal was to involve access to the events only. But as things progressed, the U.S. Olympic Committee eventually picked up the complete tab for all the press officers.

Weller credits Peter Ueberroth, then the director of the USOC and now commissioner of major league baseball, with reviving the American Olympic spirit.

"The man did a great job," said Weller. "He showed the USOC how much great facilities all the time, even when we weren't hosting. There's more money being poured into the USOC this year than in 1984."

"This year, the athletes won't have to beg, borrow and steal to train. We have such great facilities all over the country for the Summer Olympics."

One change Weller would like to see in the Olympic movement is more consistency pertaining to the eligibility of professionals.

"I'd like to see Larry Bird and Magic Johnson on the basketball team," he said. "How about Wade Boggs on the baseball team. But they can't play."

Weller isn't the only connection SIUE has in Seoul. There is, of course, Steve Trittschuh, Ken Flach and Robert Seguso are competing in tennis, while Cougar wrestler Brock Benford is an alternate on the U.S. wrestling squad.

When Weller was SID at Central Missouri State, he met trainer who had worked at the 1980 Winter Games in Lake Placid, N.Y.

"When she came back I spent every game she worked at talking to her about the Olympics," he said.

When Weller got his chance at the San Diego convention, he grabbed the ball and didn't drop it. He has also worked the U.S. Olympic festivals in Chapel Hill, N.C. and Houston, Texas.

Another change Weller would like to see involves a check-off on the tax form Americans prepare each year.

"If I can check off one dollar for a political candidate, why can't I do it for the Olympic team?" he said.

DePew fits in after first year of pro ball

DAREN DE PEW
BOISE

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

Pictured above is evidence enough that Daren DePew is officially a professional baseball player. After all, if your own baseball card doesn't prove it, what does?

He can't yet match the wondrous accomplishments of college teammate Pete Delskus, but DePew has at least got his feet wet in the world of Organized baseball.

DePew, 23, recently completed his rookie season with the Boise (Idaho) Hawks, an independent Class A team in the Northwest League. The 1988 Granite City North graduate hit around .280 and said he fit in "pretty well" during his inaugural play-for-pay campaign.

"I felt we had a pretty good team," said DePew. "It was a good group of guys and I got along well with the players."

DePew's season individually mirrored the success of the Hawks. He got off to a solid start before slumping toward the end. He had his average around the .350 mark at one point. The team, meanwhile, was in first place in the North Division of the Northwest League for several weeks. But the Hawks finished at 29-47 and in third place, 14 games behind division-winner Spokane (Wash.).

Spokane is a farm team of the San Diego Padres. Everett

IN THE BEGINNING: Daren DePew has come a long way since he was catching American Legion baseball in Granite City.

"I like the way we have been running the ball and I would really like to see us bust loose with a big game offensively."

Park player release procedure clarified

A child may be released from his or her team in one of two ways between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31.

1. A player release form is completed, signed by both the parent and manager, submitted to the park office and approved by the Rules and Protest Committee.

2. A player release form is completed which indicates the reason for the release signed by either the parent or manager and approved by the Rules and Protest Committee. After a decision is rendered by the committee, the parties involved have 3 days to contest the decision.

Further explanation can be obtained by calling the Wilson Park Office at 877-3059.

Hoopless Hoosiers? Tigers Hope To Regain Mo-Mentum

By Mark McCall
Journal Staff Writer

After being treated rather rudely by some Southern strangers, the Missouri Tigers are looking to regain some needed momentum this week against a more familiar guest, the Indiana Hoosiers.

Familiar the Hoosiers may be, but they have been no more hospitable to the Tigers than the University of Houston was last week. Missouri has lost to Indiana in Coach Woody Widenhofer's first three seasons. The Tigers will be looking to reverse the trend when the teams meet at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Faurot Field.

Beating Indiana in football used to be no major accomplishment. For years, Indiana's football team was considered one of the weak sisters of the Big Ten Conference. Not that many Hoosiers noticed. After all, basketball legend Bobby Knight works on the same campus, and there's only so much publicity to go around.

But Indiana's football team, under the guidance of Coach Bill Mallory, has been getting some of its own headlines. Mallory's overall record of 30-20 does not look impressive, but his accomplishments over the past two seasons are. He has led the Hoosiers to two consecutive bowl appearances, and his 1987 team won one win away from going to the Rose Bowl.

"We're pleased that we've been able to make progress," Mallory said. "I'm hoping we can continue to make strides this year."

Indiana's record stands at 2-0 this season, following wins over Rice and rival Kentucky. Mallory said he expects Missouri to provide a stiff test for his team.

"I have a lot of respect for Missouri," he said. "They nearly beat us last year. We got kind of lucky and hit a big play at the end, or they would have beat us. I'm sure they're going to be better this year."

The Tigers are coming into the game reeling from a blow by the Houston Cougars, who romped last week to a 31-7 win.

"They're (Houston) an awful good football team," Widenhofer said. "They've got a good chance to win the Southwestern Conference. I'd say they're probably as good a football team as we're going to see."

The loss gave the Tigers a 1-1 record and a new outlook. Perhaps Missouri quarterback John Stollenwerck, who shouldered a good deal of the fans' frustration Saturday, was able to put things in perspective.

"No one said we were going to be 11-0," said Stollenwerck, a junior. "We still think we're a good team, and we need to go out and prove that."

A win over the Hoosiers would be a good confidence builder for the young Tigers. Last year in Bloomington, a 25-yard touchdown pass from senior quarterback David Schnell to Ernie Jones with 1:21 left gave the Hoosiers a 20-17 victory. Jones had kept the winning drive alive by grabbing a critical fourth-and-17 pass for a first down.

Jones is now catching passes for the Phoenix Cardinals in the NFL. Schnell, however, is back and still dangerous. In 1987, Schnell completed 58 percent of his passes for 1,707 yards and 13 touchdowns.

Mallory said the key to his offense is balance. Tailback Anthony Thompson gives Mallory a two-fold attack. Thompson was a 1,000-yard rusher as a sophomore, and also scored 18 touchdowns.

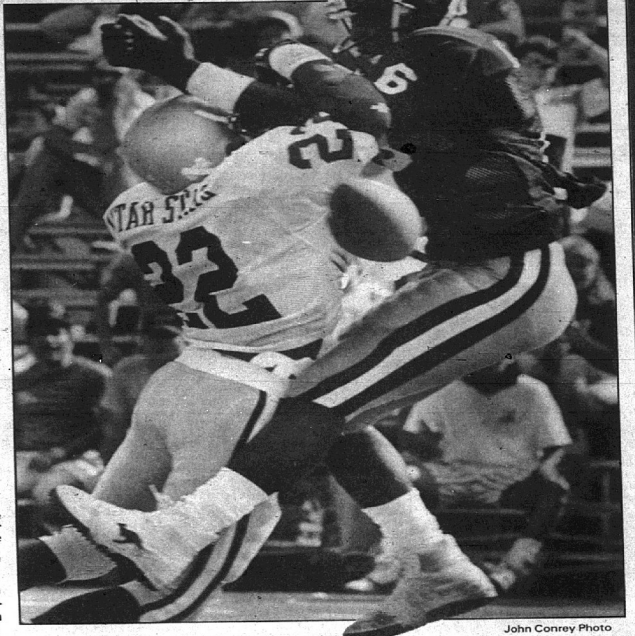

Actually, Widenhofer and his defense would probably welcome a little running by Thompson following Houston's aerial attack. Using the "run-and-shoot" offense, Jack Pardee's club threw for 373 yards and four touchdowns. Missouri's defense has now given up 665 yards in the air in two games.

Perhaps the most disturbing thing about the Houston loss was the Tigers' inability to move the ball on the ground. Missouri had 174 net yards rushing, but 128 yards of that came in the second half after the game was essentially over.

Missouri fans showed their displeasure with the offense by booing Stollenwerck, who was 6 for 18 through the air for 59 yards. Stollenwerck was replaced by redshirt freshman Brad Fitzmaurice, who completed 3 of 5 before leaving after taking a hard hit. Fellow redshirt freshman Corey Welch finished up at quarterback for the Tigers.

Widenhofer said the line, not Stollenwerck, was the reason for the team's problem. "They just ravaged our offensive line," he said. "They totally controlled the line of scrimmage."

This photo from the Tigers' win against Utah State two weeks ago seems to sum up fan frustration with last week's debacle—Stollenwerck, 6-18 for 59 yards against the Houston Cougars—had a hard time connecting.

Kicking Back Fighting Illini Relax Before Ohio State

By Jim Woodcock
Journal Staff Writer

While nine football teams from the Big Ten Conference are busy Saturday trying to salvage their league's reputation, many of the Fighting Illini may be making like couch potatoes.

Saturday marks the Illini's fourth annual off-week before their Big Ten season, which begins at Ohio State on Saturday, Oct. 1. So while Illinois' Big Ten mates are kicking off against such Top 20 schools as Louisiana State, Miami, Notre Dame and Florida State, the Illini will be relaxing.

And that's the way Coach John Mackovic likes it. "I think it will be good for us to rest and catch our breath a little bit," said Mackovic, whose Illini improved to 1-2 last Saturday by defeating visiting Utah 38-24. "I think for a new team like this, it makes sense."

"I think the players also get a chance to get a short break where they can regroup. It gives them a chance to get some rest, and they need it. They've been going at it pretty hard for the past five or six weeks."

In 1987, when the schedule first gave the Illini a Saturday afternoon off following their non-conference assignments, the team used the vacation to heal the wounds from a 52-25 beating they had taken the week before from Nebraska. Illinois opened the league schedule by defeating Ohio State 31-28.

Since then, the scheduling plan hasn't yielded the same result. In each of the past two seasons, Illinois has lost to Ohio State in games following the week off. But given the Big Ten's dismal 7-15 composite record so far this season, and the bruises suffered last weekend from the wide-open game against Utah, an open date on the last week of the non-conference schedule is a godsend.

This is particularly true for senior running back Keith Jones, the Webster Groves product who had an afternoon against Utah to tell his grandchildren and trainer about Jones rushed for 136 yards and three touchdowns, career highs that physically took a toll on the Illini's 1988 MVP.

And when Jones wasn't moving the ball against the Utes, he was moving defenders away from backfield partner Howard Griffith, who ran for 155 yards and two touchdowns. Between the hits Jones issued and received on 41 total running plays—a high number for the air-accented Illini—it's no wonder he didn't mind that Mackovic waited until Wednesday to resume full-flight workouts.

"I'm a little tired," Jones said. "But two weeks from now, if everything goes right and everyone plays up to their potential, we should be able to do the job again. We've improved a lot over the first game. If we can improve like that from game to game, we should be an exciting team."

Excitement at Illinois usually means shotgun formations and fly patterns, but the ground game has proven so far to be the answer to the Illini's offensive needs. Illinois offensive coordinator Gene Dahlquist thinks Jones, quiet but workmanlike, and the excitable Griffith may be two of the Big Ten's lesser-known weapons this fall.

"Keith's proven to be a very well-rounded player," Dahlquist said. "Along with running the ball effectively, he's been a very good blocker and an effective receiver. Howard, on the other hand, is in his developmental stage. He has very good talent that we want to build on in the future."

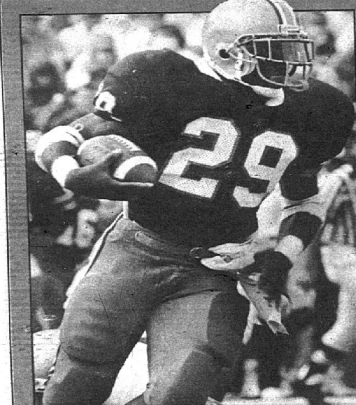

When Jones scored touchdowns of 11 and 54 yards in the first quarter Saturday, Illinois suddenly was in the strange position of enjoying a comfortable lead. Griffith's scores in the second quarter—a three-yard poke and a dramatic 78-yard burst that just ran out of steam at the goal line—positively put the Illini on Easy Street with a 28-3 advantage.

However, when the Illinois offense suddenly sputtered in the second half, Utah drew to within 28-24 and was poised to assume the lead inside the final five minutes. Jones ended the suspense with a 35-yard touchdown sprint, and the Illini learned a valuable lesson on false security.

"We can never get complacent like we did today," Griffith said. "The second half, outside of Keith's run at the end, the offense wasn't there. That's something we have to work on. We can't get complacent in this situation, especially when we go into the Big Ten."

Griffith, a sophomore who was limited to special teams play most of last season, figures to give Illinois a look drastically different to what Big Ten opponents will expect from the Illini. In Champagne, there already is speculation about whether the backfield of Jones (228 total yards rushing, three games) and Griffith (230) will take the offensive spotlight away from quarterback Jeff George and his aerial arsenal.

"Illinois has been known for passing for the last couple of years," Griffith said. "Keith and I have been talking, ever since we figured out it would be us two in the backfield, that we have to make Illinois a running team. We're not respected at all as a running team. Maybe Jeff George is all they'll be worrying about when they prepare for us."
